

Marcee Hartzell

Board Member

With over 20 years of experience in strategic leadership Marcee has the ability to align passion and programming with vision and values — strengthening culture and commitment. She has experience in both for-profit and not-for-profit / public and private organizations. She brings a unique skill set to any role.

She is the CEO of Tesh, Inc. Tesh opened its doors in 1976 with a mission is to provide choices and opportunities to children and adults with intellectual and physical disabilities. Now more than 40 years later Tesh still provides more than 300 clients per year an array of services guided by the core values of choice, dedication, integrity, progress, and quality. Tesh is dedicated to providing services that enable people living with disabilities greater independence, self-sufficiency, and participation in their community.

She is inspired by the people she serves and the purpose of her work — inspired by work that truly makes a difference.

Marcee is a graduate of Post Falls High School and North Idaho College, and has a degree in communication and public relations from the University of Washington. She has worked for private companies, non-profit organizations, k-12, community colleges and university systems in both Idaho and Washington. At the core of every position she has held, she was responsible for connecting, developing, and providing services to the underrepresented and underserved populations of her community.

Marcee has two daughters, a sophomore at Boise State University and a sophomore at Lake City High School. Her husband is a teacher at Post Falls High School. When she isn't on the soccer field, she can be found on the river or the lake fly fishing or simply relaxing.
